

END THE IRON AGE!!!

Picture the scene... It is 60BC and you are a Roman Centurion currently based in the impressive empire of Rome. Julius Caesar has sent a soldier back from battle in Gaul to ask for your help...

They have been on a mission to expand the Roman empire across the continent and have conquered parts of Gaul already. However, a strange people known as the Celts have been helping the Gaul's fight the Romans. But Julius Caesar won't stand for this. So, he has sent you this soldier with a clear and important message

Maximus Aurillius,

You are needed for an extremely important and secret mission. As you know we are currently conquering the world, but we have reached a challenging point. There is a small and unimportant island not far from here called "Britain" which is inhabited by fools called "Celts". They have shown great disrespect to the Roman Empire by defending land which is not their own. So, we intend to show them the true strength and power of Rome by invading and conquering their land.

You must plan our mission.

Find out as much as you can about them and travel to me with answers to the following questions within the week.

- Who are the Celts?
- How do they live?
- What is important to them? (That we can destroy when we arrive muahahaha)
- What can we expect to find when we arrive in Britain?
- What is the land like?
- What is the climate and weather like there?
- What equipment will we need to take?
- What weapons do they have?
- What will the journey look like for our soldiers joining us from Rome? (They are a bit daft and will need a map marking up)
- How will we get there? (Do we need boats, horses carts...?)
- How will we attack their homes when we arrive? (I expect a full plan of attack)

We will also need a full kit list for each soldier.

I expect a binder of information brought to me immediately on your arrival in a few days' time.

For the glory of Rome!

Julius Caesar
